Depth vs Breadth vs Passion
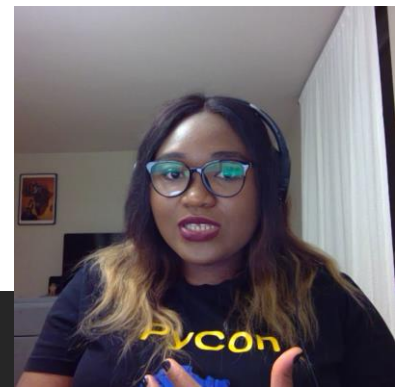

Olawumi Onawunmi
from Engineering to Fine Arts

"Passion: Art is my first love. I have always enjoyed making beautiful drawings. I have seen my skill improve as I taught myself how to draw better by watching others, practicing a lot as well as using creativity to solve problems and challenges along the way.

Everything you truly seek is on the other side of your fear. The day you can get up to do what you love without monetary gratification being the key motivation is the day you have found true freedom."

Olufunmilade Oshodi
From Software to Product Management

"I became more interested in getting closer to users and representing them in the products I built, as I grew, I wanted to own more and more of the product strategy and the entire lifecycle of product delivery."

African Proverbs from the Ancestors Stable

➤ "There are many roads that leads to the market"

➤ "If you listen to the voice of people in the market, you won't buy"

➤ "By crawling, a child learns to stand." ~African Proverb

➤ "What an Old Man Sees Sitting Down, A Young Man Cannot See Standing Up"

➤ "It is from a small seed that the giant Iroko tree has its beginning"
